2010 Healthy Kids Innovation Award United Way of Western Connecticut

The Healthy Child Innovation Award, is given in honor of June Renzulli for her commitment and leadership of United Way of Western Connecticut. June served the United Way and our community for over 15 years. During that time, June was a leader of innovation and change, championing the organization into a new model of community impact and a successful merger of three United Way chapters. The issue of children's health is important to June because in 2008 her granddaughter was diagnosed with Juvenile Diabetes.

This grant is designed to reward innovative or new and experimental programs in the fields of childhood nutrition or other childhood health issues. It is a two-year grant and offers a maximum of $10,000 annually. Programs appropriate for consideration must be new programs, yet to be launched or in operation for no more than 1 year. It must also demonstrate that it is based on best practices or industry research in the appropriate field.

The 2010 Healthy Kids Innovation Award Request For Proposal (RFP) is a two-year grant, beginning on or about September 1, 2010. Programs are funded by local dollars raised in the UWWC, Inc. regions of Northern Fairfield County, Stamford and Southern Litchfield County. Any agency that serves members of these communities and meets the funding requirements of UWWC are eligible to apply. Agencies do not need to be currently funded through UWWC.

The grant form and instructions can be found online at www.uwwesternct.org/our-work/grant-opportunities. If you are interested in applying, please complete and return per instructions. If you have any questions, contact Elizabeth Goehring at 203-792-5330.
